Dear Father of the Bride...

Congratulations!

It's an exciting time for you as your daughter embarks on a new adventure with her husband.

One of your duties will be to give a wedding speech and toast to the bride and groom.

It's an important honor and your speech will be one that the bride and groom will remember.

The Top 5 Most Important Wedding Speech Tips

As you've read the articles and posts at WeddingSpeechesSecrets.com we hope you've picked up some handy tips for your wedding speech.

Here are what we consider the most important ones to keep in mind...

- (1) Don't try to "wing it" with your wedding speech. Spur of the moment comments can be a disaster. Give your wedding speech careful thought and preparation for the bride and groom's special day.
- (2) Start preparing your speech early. Give yourself lots of time for ideas to percolate. The less rushed you are, the better your speech will be.
- (3) Keep your speech to 5 minutes...maximum. That's about 750 words.
- (4) Memorize your opening and closing sentences and your toast. It will increase your confidence and allow for smooth transitions as your speech progresses.
- (5) Practice your speech. Out loud. In front of a mirror...or a friend. You don't have to memorize it word for word. But you should know what you are going to say so it sounds natural.

Talents You Can Use In Your Wedding Speech

As you think about what to say in your wedding speech, ask yourself what qualities you bring to your presentation...

- Are you good at one-liners or have a deep bag of appropriate jokes that never fail to get a laugh?
- Are you known for giving sound advice or words of wisdom?

Because you're the proud Father of the Bride, your speech will in all likelihood be a combination of humor and emotion.

Craft your wedding speech to your personality. If you've got a serious personality, a joke or one-liner might fall flat. On the other hand, if you've got a wonderful sense of humor, it will be hard for you to give a serious wedding speech without at least a few teasing remarks about the groom.

Also consider the personalities of the bride and groom. Are they a fun loving couple who enjoy humor and a good laugh? Or are they serious minded and might be embarrassed with some gentle ribbing?

In preparing your wedding speech, think about what qualities you bring to your presentation or tribute and then tailor your speech and message accordingly.

Public Speaking Confidence Booster

If you're like most of us, the thought of giving a speech in front of a group of people sends a shiver of panic through your body.

But with proper preparation you can overcome the worst of your fears very easily. If you're looking for just the right words for your speech, Father of the Bride Speeches (affiliate) gives you a complete package of 20 "ready made" professionally written speech templates you can adapt and over 200 toasts and jokes to inject humor and wisdom into your presentation.

Amazingly, being slightly nervous before giving your wedding speech can help you do even better. Even professional performers admit to being nervous before going on stage. But with a well prepared and properly rehearsed speech you'll have the confidence to perform your duties with ease and assurance.

What To Talk About In Your Wedding Speech

As Father of the Bride, you will be welcoming the wedding guests -- particularly the groom's parents and friends -- and thanking them for celebrating the happy event with you and your family.

The main part of your speech will be a tribute to your daughter on her special day. But be sure to include the groom in your speech as well.

Here, then, are several questions you can ask yourself as you begin to put your presentation together and develop a "theme"...

- What is it that you admire about your daughter?
- Is there a heartwarming story about your daughter's qualities that you could talk about?
- Does your daughter have any habits you can comment on (without embarrassing her)? Does she take a lot of time getting ready before she goes out? And was it because of this that you got to know the groom well while he was waiting for her?
- Do you have any favorite memories of the bride as she was growing up that you could include in your theme?
- Do the bride and groom share the same profession -- musicians, lawyers, accountants, doctors. Can you link their professions to your wedding speech theme using terms that apply to that profession?

- Was there something unusual about how they met? Did they meet by accident or was it pre-planned by friends? Was it serendipity, coincidence, accident, or fate?
- How is your life affected by the marriage? Are you losing a daughter but gaining the use of your bathroom or garage?

Select a couple of topics to develop your wedding speech theme around -- things that strike you as being especially appropriate for the occasion.

Your wedding speech doesn't have to be completely serious though. It can include a joke about married life....or a humorous story that illustrates what the groom is getting himself into.

You can be sentimental with a poignant story. You can talk about how proud you are of your daughter. And you can offer advice or words of wisdom to your daughter and son-in-law.

It's certainly appropriate -- and expected -- for you to wish your daughter and her new husband a happy marriage and to congratulate and welcome the groom to your family on behalf of yourself and your wife.

And it goes without saying that you'll mention how beautiful and happy your daughter looks and how lucky the groom is to have such a wonderful woman to share his life with.

You might also want to formally welcome the groom's parents and tell them how you look forward to getting to know them better and strengthening your friendship with them.

If you're not sure what words to use in your speech or how to say the toast, check out Father of the Bride Speeches for inspiration in creating your own wedding speech. You'll find it's the perfect companion to this guide.

The Toast To The Bride And Groom

You've now come to the final part of your speech.

Here are some cheerful and positive ways you can finish your wedding speech...

- You could leave the bride and groom with an uplifting message about marriage or a comment about how bright their future is and how they should look forward to their new adventure in life.
- You could say something affectionate and sentimental -- how you love your daughter and how much you and your wife are going to miss her even though you know she is in good hands with her new husband.
- You could end with a wish: You wish the newlyweds health, happiness, and a long life.

Then it's time to propose your toast to the bride and groom.

Ask the wedding guests to stand and join you in toasting the happy couple.

Your Daughter And Her New Husband Deserve Your Best Speech On Their Special Day

Your speech will be one of the most important duties you perform at your daughter's wedding.

It's one that you'll look back and remember with pride.

And it's definitely one that will be cherished by your daughter.

So it deserves your best effort to make it a special occasion for the newlyweds.

When it comes to giving a wedding speech you can either write it from scratch without guidance or look for inspiration from other wedding speeches.

In Father of the Bride Speeches you'll discover a fine selection of adaptable, pre-written wedding speeches, toasts, and jokes all designed to make your speech sparkle.

Mix and match, cut and paste, adapt and fine tune. You'll cut down your preparation time dramatically and create a wedding speech that the bride and groom will remember forever.

But that's not all! As Father of the Bride...

You Might Have To Make Not Just One Wedding Speech...But Two!

With all the pre-wedding functions you'll attend, chances are you'll be called upon -- or feel obligated -- to make another toast or short speech before the big event at the wedding reception.

So it's a good idea to have more than one speech or toast ready for these other occasions.

You'll look like a true professional giving one speech and toast at a pre-wedding event and then presenting totally different versions at the wedding reception.

To You It's Just A Wedding Speech... To Your Daughter It's A Cherished Memory

One of the most important moments of your daughter's wedding will be the sentiments you say in your wedding speech.

You'll want to say something that shows your pride and affection for your daughter and wishes her every joy and happiness in her new role as a wife.

When your daughter is sitting at the head table at the wedding reception, she'll be waiting to hear your words of love.

And what better gift to give her than a wedding speech that she'll remember for years to come.

So save time, get inspiration, and choose the right words to express your emotions by taking a moment to look at Father of the Bride Speeches before you start preparing your speech - or speeches - for one of the most important events of your daughter's life.

Here's a breakdown of what you get in this amazing speech making package:
